MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

Spending my practice life in Sarasota has allowed me to see the powerful influence some people have had on our community. Sometimes the influence a person has is not immediately obvious. One of our current third-year medical students, Jesse O'Shea, has had a manuscript accepted by the academic journal Clinical Geriatrics. For a student to have a manuscript accepted by such a high-quality scientific journal is a significant achievement. It is also a statement about the quality of our students ...but, of course, as you may have guessed there is more to this story. Jesse did his academic work last summer as a Geriatric Research Scholar, but Jesse was not just any research scholar. He was a Dr. Charles Mathews Geriatric Research Scholar.

BRUCE BERG, M.D., MBA

For those of you who did not know Dr. Mathews, he was the founder of the Pulmonary Associates group in Sarasota in 1972. Dr. Bruce Fleegler was the second physician member and I was the third member. Charles had many accomplishments during his time leading Pulmonary Associates, including service as the chief of staff at both Sarasota Memorial Hospital and Doctors Hospital. In 1984 he left practice to become the first vice president of medical staff affairs at Sarasota Memorial. In 1989 he departed Sarasota to become the chief medical officer for the Florida Department of Corrections. He continued serving in that difficult role for nine years. He remained in Tallahassee after he left the Department of Corrections to continue working with various health services to improve access for the indigent and underserved.

During Dr. Mathews' time in Tallahassee he became a great friend of the FSU College of Medicine, where he donated his personal conference binder of the 1966 Presidential Meeting on Medicare Implementation. He also set up a College of Medicine foundation fund to help students interested in geriatric research. And that, of course, is where Jesse O'Shea comes in. Jesse received a grant from the Charles Mathews fund that allowed him to do his academic work in geriatrics. Jesse is now in Sarasota, where he will continue to learn medicine and be influenced by physicians of the pulmonary and critical care practice that Dr. Mathews founded many years ago. There is clearly something timely and timeless about this series of events. Dr. Mathews' generosity continues to be returned to our community through a student who received his economic help. Jesse will grow into an excellent physician with Dr. Mathews as one of his role models. Dr. Mathews also leaves behind a large pulmonary and critical-care group that continues to provide extraordinary teaching to our students. There is definitely something full circle about all this.

STUDENT AWARDED GRANT TO STUDY IN LONDON

JESSE O'SHEA

Third-year medical student, Jesse O'Shea, was recently awarded a Rotary International Global Grant Scholarship, which replaced their well-known Ambassadorial scholarship program (intended to provide goodwill ambassadors to the host country of study). Global grants must relate to one or more of the six areas of Rotary focus, have a long-term impact and must be for a graduate level program, and must be sustainable and measurable (how will the scholar's studies support one or more of the areas of focus?) O'Shea's chosen area of focus is disease prevention and treatment. Selection criteria for this award include: Excellent leadership skills and potential, Proven record of success in his/her academic field or vocation, Personal commitment to community service, Well-defined and realistic goals, Concrete ideas as to how he/she will make advances within his/her chosen career field, Sincerity about maintaining a lifelong relationship with Rotary after the scholarship period. The process requires several rounds of approval (including interviews), first at the local Rotary club, next at the District level, followed by the International level, and finally, acceptance into the university of study. The funding amount will likely near $50,000.

O'Shea's intended year-long course is an MSc in Health Policy, Planning and Financing—a joint degree run by two world renowned institutions—the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine (LSHTM) and the London School of Economics (LSE) and will begin in September 2014, ending in September 2015. The mission of LSHTM is to contribute to the improvement of health worldwide through the pursuit of excellence in research, postgraduate teaching, advanced training and consultancy in international public health and tropical medicine. The London School of Economics & Political Science (LSE) is a world class center for its concentration of teaching and research across the full range of the social, political and economic sciences.

O'Shea said, "The program will be an opportunity to merge my backgrounds in health care and social sciences and to look around the world and figure out why and how people have employed resources to solve some of humanity's greatest health problems. There is no better place to figure this out; their MSc in Health Policy, Planning and Financing is unmatched. The program will empower me with knowledge on a diverse range of global and national health policies—giving me a multidisciplinary approach to global public health and to develop successful, professional practices to be applied in Haiti and throughout the world. Furthermore, the cultural exchange embedded in the program while also being in an international city will enhance my global citizenry and my holistic view on health care. This line of work serves Rotary's mission to further world understanding of peace and good health, and addresses the humanitarian needs of the world community. Courses such as Health Systems and Policies in Developing Countries, Designing Disease Control Programmes in Developing Countries, Epidemiology and Control of Communicable Disease are examples of courses taught that will better enable me to work towards my life's mission of improving health worldwide and alleviating suffering."

In the future, O'Shea sees himself "working towards solving the most persistent problems in the health care field—creating innovative solutions to some of the world's health inequities... as a policy maker, but also as a physician, helping those who most need it."

Additionally, O'Shea has had a manuscript addressing Medicare acceptance by primary physicians accepted for publication in Clinical Geriatrics. He did this work last summer as a Charles R. Mathews Geriatric Research Scholar.

CAMPUS NEWS & HIGHLIGHTS

2013–14 ANNUAL FUND UPDATE

In 2013 the Sarasota Campus Annual Fund donors gave $34,186. In addition, an anonymous donor sponsored two $5,000 scholarships for deserving fourth-year students. Through the generosity of our faculty, clerkship directors, board members and community donors, we were able to award $20,000 in scholarships to deserving graduating students to offset the costs of their education.

Many thanks to Dr. Kathleen Kennedy, internal medicine clerkship director, for her recent pledge to the President's Club, which is a commitment of $10,000 or more over five years. She joins other clerkship directors, Dr. Jon Yenari, Dr. John Kieffer and Dr. Nicole Bentze, in their pledges. Other faculty members to be recognized for donating through rotation donation payments are Dr. Brett Williams and the practice of Schofield, Hand and Bright. These recurring donations have helped to strengthen our position in medical education in our community. Thank you all for your generosity and for nurturing a culture of philanthropy at the FSU College of Medicine's Sarasota Campus.
